Who Should Come and Why.

It is only two weeks until the Sunday School Convention. Already the generous hearts and happy homes of Louisa are wide open to receive their good friends and neighbors from the country schools. Mr. S. Burns is ready to say "Howdy." M. J. Allen will say "Thank you, we are glad to be here." R. T. Burns, with the help of the speakers, will run the program on time, and the speakers are preparing to give us something to justify us in coming. There is a feast of good things in store for all.

1. The preachers should come for the sake of their example and their influence.

2. The superintendents should come by all means to get an inspiration and an uplift, or forever cease to complain of the lack of interest on the part of others. Half the time the fellow is not interested because there is nothing interesting in the school. Whose fault?

3. The teachers should come. The class whose teacher does not come should be pitied. But what of the teacher?

4. The day school teachers should come because of the moral and pedagogical value of the convention.

5. The district officers should come because they may learn how to do their work better and easier.

Are you coming? Send your name to Miss Lella Snyder, Louisa.
